Michael Gottardi wins Trail Race for fourth time

By Phyllis Chapman

Two superb runners were top finishers in the 27th Annual Mt. Wilson Trail Race which was held Saturday, May 29. With the fantastic time of 59.10, Michael Gottardi, age 26, took first place, making this his fourth Mt. Wilson Trail Race win. He also placed first in 1989, 1990 and 1992.

Alan Reynolds, age 29, was second as he clocked 1:00.12. Reynolds was first place winner in 1988 when he set the race record of 56.2 and then again in 1991. Gottardi and Reynolds battled it out neck and neck all along the trail until the downhill when Gottardi shot ahead, but both were described as "Coming down like bullets."

Now an Arcadia resident, Gottardi grew up in Hastings Ranch and is the athletic trainer at Glendora High School. He runs 80 or 90 miles a week and first entered the Trail Race in 1985. He has a wedding date with Carla Anson, also a runner, on June 19. Both consider this their all-out favorite race.

Placing third overall, but first for Sierra Madre runners, was 23-year-old Douglas Ravesty at 1:03.08. He also placed first for Sierra Madre in 1990. After his graduation in a year from San Diego Nazarene College, he plans a career in physical education.

Shining first for women was 37-year-old Cindy Busarow of Monrovia with a good woman's time of 1:17.16. This is her second time in the race but loves trail runs.

"Wonderful, terrific, terrific!" were her comments regarding this race and said the trail was never in better shape. She trains with Team Blarney in Pasadena where Jim O'Brien teaches. O'Brien was planning to run the race again this year but he and his wife were up during the night with their baby, leaving the new father too tired.

Veronica Muhlstein, age 34, and also from Monrovia, made second for women with 1:32.33.

First female in for Sierra Madre was Judy West, recording 1:22.45. Her husband Ralph also ran with a time of 1:18.07 and is a 15-year veteran of this race. They have a 4-year old son, Ben. Teri Palmer placed second for Sierra Madre women, 1:53.56 and Mary Forney's 1:54.06 gave her third. Forney's 12-year old son, Joe, was also in this race.

Two 14-year-old Sierra Madre youngsters, Marissa Sandoval and Denise Casco, placed first and second with 2:12.49 and 2:13.15, respectively, in their age category. Last year Sandoval was in the hospital when she planned to run in the race and Casco ran in her place. In the same age group, Matt Johnson, So. Pasadena, and Grant Pepping, Sierra Madre, clocked 1:35.39 and 1:38.25 for first and second respectively.

Stacy Myer, 24, of Hollywood, ran this race four months pregnant and did very well considering she was running for two. Also commended was Jerry Soto, age 65, who ran this trail race for the 15th time, coming in first in the 60-plus age group with 1:23.44. He's from West Covina and put off surgery to run. He and Chair Soderblom are buddies, and Soderblom, age 61, placed third with 1:32.11.

Race announcers were Mike Sullivan and Bob Burnett with Sullivan presenting the awards. Top male and female trophies were donated by Miner Harkness. Gottardi's name will again be placed on the City's perpetual trophy. Handsome race logo medallions were awarded to the third place in each category. In addition, Sierra Madre runners who placed, received gift awards from Sierra Madre business people. Lorayne Russman, co-chair of this year's race was impressed by the generosity shown by the merchants in contributing.

Larry Sherwin, age 60, has been the traditional last place runner to cross the finish. This year, taking pity on the race committee who have to wait out his return, he started up the trail an hour earlier. Official last race runners this year were Earl Binson, time 2:30.51, and Kathi Simonson who sustained an ankle injury. She received a Little Stuga gift certificate and the champagne donated by The Bottle Shop. This race is still a tribute to anyone who can get there and back.

Starting gun time for the 250 plus pre-registered runners was 7:30 a.m. with Hugh Campbell shooting the gun (he promised not to shoot any local dignitaries). The race was dedicated to the memory of Ambrose Zaro, "Keeper of the Trail." September was Zaro's birthday month and an all-day event is being planned for this coming September to honor Zaro and a plaque dedicated to be placed up on the trail. Campbell will chair the event.

Beautiful weather and a large turnout of spectators and supporters added to the great success of this exciting event. The crowd cheered and applauded Race Chair Art Soderblom for the tremendous job he has done in bringing the event off and in supervising the tough work of restoring the trail. Soderblom in turn, thanked all for the great assistance he has received. Just as an example he spoke of runner Bill Dickey who also helped repair the trail and carried a total of 900 lbs. of cement up the trail on his back.

Chiropractic doctor Fadi Baroume of Pasadena set up three tables to provide therapy and massage needed by any returning runners. The medical team assisting him was Renee Weaver, Sierra Madre; Teri Williams, Arcadia; and Francis Della Volpe who has been in Sierra Madre's Dr. John Talevich's office for 18 years. This was a tremendous volunteer service.

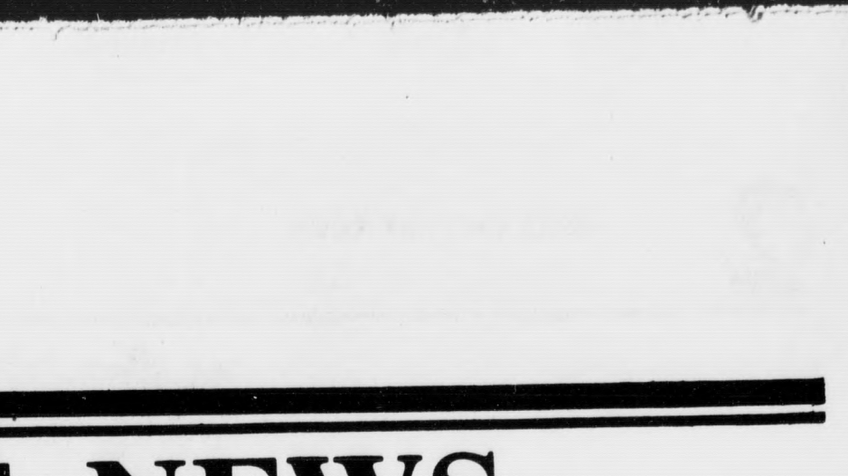
WINNER AFTER RACE — Michael Gottardo is shown here moments after his win in the Mt. Wilson Trail Race Saturday morning in Sierra Madre.



NAMED ON PERPETUAL TROPHY — Michael Gottardi's name appears on the city's perpetual trophy again this year, following the Trail Race. Congratulating him is Race Chair Art Soderblom who also ran in this year's race.

THIRD PLACE — Douglas Ravesty accepts third overall from Art Soderblom.

Parade applications now available

Applications for the Fourth of July Parade are now available at City Hall and at the Sierra Madre News office, 9 Kersting Court, according to Doug Hayes, chairman of the Fourth of July Committee.

Those wishing more information should call city hall at 355-7135.

Post office extends hours

John Sheridan, Sierra Madre postmaster, announced this week that the post office on South Baldwin will remain open on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., starting immediately.

Weekdays will also find the post office remaining open until 5:30 each weekday, with the hours from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. each day.

"We hope these extra hours will make it more convenient for all of you customers," Sheridan said.

Cara Yehle in grave condition

Cara Yehle, 18, niece of Michelle and Gil Lucero, owners of Restaurant Lozano in Sierra Madre, remained on life support at Kaiser Hospital, Hollywood, Tuesday morning, after having suffered an extreme allergic reaction when she was at a concert at the Greek Theater, Saturday, May 29.

She was with Loren and Tom Lomboy, sons of Carmella and Ben Lomboy of Sierra Madre, and Tom performed CPR on her until paramedics arrived.

She suffered from cardiac arrest at the concert and again Tuesday morning, and her condition is grave, according to Gil Lucero.

Cara's parents are Cindy and George Weis of Sierra Madre and her grandparents are Bob and Joan Yehle, also of Sierra Madre.

Cara has worked at Restaurant Lozano for several years and she was the woman in their television commercial.

She attended St. Lucy's Catholic School and graduated from Arcadia High School. Cara was attending Mt. Sac at the time of her illness.

Budget woes are continuing trend

The first budget session of the Sierra Madre City Council Tuesday evening reflected more uncertainities of how California cities will deal with the constant plundering of revenues by the state.

There is a $130,000 shortfall between revenue of $4,295,000 and $4,383,000, general fund appropriations, in Sierra Madre.

"We have a rough estimate that 15 percent of the property tax will be withheld (by the state), "City Administration Jim McRea told the group.

City Councilman Gary Adams suggested that the budget might show a total amount and watch it become depleted as the state takes more and more of the revenue away and McRea answered, "We have budgeted the worst case possible budget."

Assistant City Administrator Sean Joyce pointed out that in the budgeted 1993-94 revenue summary by fund he had plugged in the OII settlement and the proposed utility users' fee and still there is a loss of about $300,000 reflected in the $6,736,956. "If I didn't plug those in we'd lose another $700,000," he said.

The Motor Vehicle In-Lieu revenues of $363,199 are "targeted for the state to take," according to McRea. And even though many of the 1993-94 budgeted amounts represent a downward trend, Sierra Madre is in trouble.

Referring to the budget breakdown, showing the percentage of difference from 1992-93 to 1993-94, the total general fund expenditures are shown with a 3.6 percent drop.

Out of the 25 entries of programs/departments, 13 have dropped in percentage from last year. The rest are slightly up from last year.

Budget discussions continue on off Tuesdays from City Council meetings.

Arlie Hahn wins Volunteer Award

By Robin McCarthy

Arlie Hahn of Sierra Madre received smiles, flowers, thanks and the Red Cross Volunteer of the Year Award for her exceptional service to the American Red Cross at the San Gabriel Valley Chapter Awards and Recognition Ceremony held at the Ritz Carlton recently.

Five special awards were presented to a Volunteer of the Year from cach of the Chapter's five service centers. Hahn was presented with the award from the Foothill Service Center. The Foothill Service Center, located at 200 E. Lime Street in Monrovia, serves the cities of Bradbury, Duarte, Irwindale, Monrovia and Sierra Madre.

"I was thrilled and very surprised to be given this award," expressed Hahn.

Hahn has given outstanding service to the Red Cross, beginning in 1975 working at the Sierra Madre Branch Office and volunteering at blood drives. In 1978, fellow Sierra Madre resident and neighbor, Candy Taylor, recruited Hahn to become a disaster volunteer. Hahn has helped with disaster feeding operations at many local disasters and has worked on three large National disaster assignments: the Sierra Madre Earthquake, Big Bear Earthquake and she flew 3000 miles to help victims of Hurricane Iniki in Hawaii.

"I've worked on every kind of natural disaster except flood," stated Hahn.

Hahn plans to continue volunteering with Red Cross for many years to come. "I find it very rewarding. This kind of work isn't for everyone, it takes someone who's adventurous," says Hahn.

At 78 years, Hahn is indeed adventurous and very active. "I associate with young people. It helps me keep young!"

Arlie and husband, John, celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary on May 25th. "My husband is very supportive of my Red Cross volunteer work," says Hahn. "In fact, both my husband and I are five-gallon blood donors with Red Cross."

Signs down

Every so often I get on my soap box, gnash my teeth and holler about all the signs we find on utility poles in Sierra Madre. It's about that time.

Ralph Schroder found a piece in the Los Angeles Times recently about that very thing—signs growing out of poles, light fixtures, palm trees—and all of them flauting an ordinance.

It's the same here.

The Times has come up with the name "political graffiti" which points to their many candidates for mayor. We don't elect a mayor here; the City Council does it for us by determining whose turn it is when they reorganize each April. But we have all sorts of other signs.

Signs on poles here decry "Lost cat," "Yard Sale," "House for sale," to name a few.

Many kind souls place huge signs on autos, leaving them in the vicinity of the sale. No tree signs. No pole signs. That should please the city because it abuses no privileges.

Do people go to jail for is? No. There is no jail time associated with illegally posting a sign.

However, according to The Times, the per-sign fees have generated more than $300,000 for the city in recent years. And here is why I am hollering and gnashing my teeth.

Is this an answer to some of our city's financial problems? It might be just a pittance but a pittance is better than no pittance at all.

In Los Angeles this money is funneled back to the city's street maintenance division, according to The Times.

Let's set up a group of volunteers to harvest the signs, take them to the Police Department for the proper enforcement. It would serve the village well: clean up our wonderful town, assist the busy Police Department and bring in a little revenue.

Under the Pepper Tree

by Jan Reed

● Those of you who read the Pepper Tree weekly probably found an error that caused many giggles around Sierra Madre. Because we adore Dorothy Johansen so much, we don't want it to reflect on the fact that the typo was in the column concerning her.

The typesetter said that Dorothy had suffered a broken "lip" instead of "hip" and your proofreader didn't catch it. Oh my. There are many ways of laughing it off...shooting from the lip instead of the hip...and the many World War II slogans such as "A slip of a lip can sink a ship." Oh, there are many.

Mostly, though, I want to apologize to Dorothy for the typo. Although it created quite a stir of laughter, it surely did not reflect on the fact that she has suffered a broken hip. Our apologies, Dorothy. May you convalesce quickly.

● Our Fourth of July Parade Marshal is in the hospital. Helen Walker has been in Norris Cancer Hospital for a little over a week, recovering from some chemotherapy which she had been taking. She had a bad reaction, obviously.

She has a whole month to recuperate from the chemo and then she will be kicking up her heels in the parade, we told her.

Meanwhile, send a little energy to this special gal. She could use it.

● Sierra Madre made Westways magazine recently, probably because Payton Miller, son of Tommy Ann and Howard Miller of Sierra Madre, is senior editor of the well-known magazine. Payton announced the Trail Race, that was held on Saturday. Judging by the added crowd this year, Payton's announcement did some good.

It was a great race, and a great race day.

It's always such a surprise to see many of the runners glide in with hardly a drop of perspiration on their foreheads. Others, however, look a bit white-faced from that very rigorous run straight up and down that hill.

● We hear that Roger Caswell was married after the Trail Race Saturday. He is the former cross country coach at Maranatha and one of his former students dropped off that information to us...

● Russell Jensen of British Columbia, Canada, was in Sierra Madre over the weekend, visiting Lincoln Paschall.

Many people who have lived here for years may remember Jensen who was here in 1938-39. The Grijalva brothers told us about it and were delighted to visit with him.

● Someone delivered a piece to us from the May 25 edition of the Santa Rosa Press Democrat, and, although we don't know why we received it, we assume it refers to someone in Sierra Madre.

The column, from "Gaye LeBaron's Notebook," was about the death of Joan-lee Woehler LaSalle, former drama teacher at the college.

Before her death April 14 at age 65, she established a theater arts scholarship fund.

If any of you out there know Joan-lee, please identify yourselves and perhaps we can do a follow-up piece.

● MayRee Mize also handed us a salute to the Flag taken from Abby's column in the Los Angeles Times in which the Flag spoke to the populace. It was a moving piece and referred to the fact that people don't treat our Flag with the respect as in earlier years.

There's a lesson there... Thanks, MayRee, for your contribution.

● We also had a follow-up to the piece we did recently concerning information sent to members of the Arcadia Federated Republican Woman's Club. We received it from a friend in Sierra Madre. The piece described a petition which supposedly answered a demand by Madelyn Murray O'Hair and her quest to squelch any mention of the Gospel on the airways.

Both the president of the club and Cathy Fiore called to explain that the information was erroneous. The former apologized and said that the information was disseminated by mistake, and the latter, Cathy, sent two pieces of information from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), explaining that the rumor concerning the petition was false. Apparently, it has been denied and denied...and yet the petition rears its ugly head from time to time.

Let us put it to rest, once and for all. There is no petition, therefore, there is no reason to respond negatively to the petition. petition.

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF FOOD COUNTS
Corinne T. Netzer

"The Complete Book of Food Counts" by Corinne T. Netzer contains all the information about the foods you love that you absolutely don't want to know about, especially if you need to lose a few pounds, or should lower your fat intake, or watch your sodium consumption, or rein in that sweet tooth. In other words, you really don't want to look up information on a Pizza Hut Super Supreme while scarfing one down.

But, if you want to eat healthier, or if you're just curious about what you cram into your bod via that black hole known as your mouth, then this book is for you. For example, a 6-ounce serving of V-8 juice has only 35 calories, no fat and no cholesterol, but contains a whopping 600 milligrams of sodium. A half cup dry roasted unsalted peanuts (no shells) has only 4 milligrams of sodium and supplies 5.8 grams of dietary fiber, but also has 36.3 grams of fat and 428 calories. Or how about a regular scoop of Baskin-Robbins rainbow sherbet (I assume without cone). It is only 160 calories, has only 85 milligrams sodium and 2 grams fat. But it also contains 34 grams of sugar.

Foods are conveniently listed alphabetically, including fast-food and brand-name items. The cross-referencing is a tremendous help. Counts include measurements, calories, carbohydrates (sugars and starch), fat, cholesterol, sodium and fiber. The book provides no information on what amounts of things are right for you - you have to get that information from your doctor. But once you know, this book is an invaluable dietary aid, or a handy reference for those who just want to eat healthier.

By the way, two slices of a hand-tossed, medium Pizza Hut Super Supreme has 463 calories, 21 grams fat, 56 milligrams cholesterol and 1336 milligrams sodium. Hope I didn't spoil your dinner.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING
Kenneth Branagh, Emma Thompson, Denzel Washington, Robert Sean Leonard, Michael Keaton

See!! In a splendid partnership transcending the span of time, the teaming of William Shakespeare and Kenneth Branagh again provides an entertaining, energizing presentation brimming with humor and romance, soldiers and loyalty, royalty and action! The theme here is "manipulation." There are those merry souls who would unite shy lovers, and there are the treacherous ones who wantonly destroy the happiness of others. While human nature has not changed so much over the centuries, as you will see in these lustily alive Shakespearean characters, few screen relationships created today have the ultimate sexual tension as The Bard's two confirmed misogamists played by Branagh and Thompson. Keaton is a campy clown of a constable, not incompetent, but almost completely incomprehensible. 'Twas as if he galloped in from the land of Monty Python, but methinks The Bard wouldst approve.

Efficiency, it's killing me

By Harry Martin

A long time ago a philosopher said, "Mankind is faced with the problem of escaping from his own ingenuity." Wise words, and truer now then ever before. In our headlong rush to do things faster, bigger and differently we have invented many gadgets to take the place of the human hand and mind. Literally and figuratively, we have become entangled in a maze of wires, robots, computers and sometimes, strange ideas. In our efforts to be efficient we have defeated the original purpose. Just a few examples...

Why is it many companies use different sizes of stationery to send out their bills? Each month I mail out a number of checks for utilities and insurance. The invoices and envelopes are different sizes, no doubt requiring different sizes of computers. Why not standardize both stationery and computers? One of the most infuriating offenders is a certain insurance company. Time was when they sent me a small packet of coupons good for a whole year. The postage was 39 cents. Now they send me two large envelopes each month, and the enclosed invoices are 10 times as large as the copons were. Now the postage is 14 times as large as it was three years ago. This is efficiency?

There was a time when one could present a check or deposit slip to the bank teller and whatever transaction was necessary was performed quickly and with a human touch to the operation. The tellers are still friendly and helpful, but now they are required to play some kind of a concerto on a set of keys while the piece of paper goes through a slot to the accompaniment of chatter, chatter, chatter, Rube Goldberg and his cartoon creation, "Perfessor Nutzenboltz," must be howling with laughter.

It all reminds me of a story about the old lady who had a bad cold. The doctor asked, "Mrs. McTavish, when you had the chill, did your teeth chatter?" "I dinna know," was the reply, "They were lying on the table."

I wouldn't be surprised if someday those bank computers started playing the "Dow-Jones Jive" or the "Wall Street Blues."

One of the mind-boggling samples of billing is in the medical profession. Time was when we paid our doctor when the bill was rendered and then waited for whatever the supplemental insurance would pay. But no more. The bills come from some far away place where a computer with indigestion is having a bad day. It is difficult enough to pay the bill, but when notified that you are in arrears when you are not, is infuriating, to say the least. Some years ago Pluma had a heart attack and was in one of the local hospitals a week. After she came home I tried in vain to get a financial statement. Months went by and then I received a bill for $6300. I went to the hospital office where six people were staring fixedly at computer screens. One of the help wanted to know my trouble. When told, there was another session with another computer. "There has been a mistake. You owe $47." Hallelujah!!

There is always a way to solve problems. It seems that a call girl, feeling the wear, tear and tedium of her profession went to her doctor for a checkup. "No need to worry, young lady," was the verdict. "Just go home and stay out of bed for a few days." Would that all diagnosis and treatment be so simple.

Out and About

By Dick Rogers

Kim and I will be in the northeast corner of Utah. We'll be spending some time with a woman in that area who specializes in finding Indian pictographs and petroglyphs. In case you're interested, pictographs are painted or stained objects on rock, and petroglyphs are chipped or etched into the rock. You learned something...

Just before I left, Toni Moran had a talk with me and she reminisced about the canyon. Seems she spent some time in that area back in the '60s or '70s...had her hair parted in the middle...had some long flowing dress no doubt and a flower or two in her hair (I can get away with this because we're friends.) This tidbit out of the past caused us to think about other wonderful remembrances. Then the idea struck.

This town is populated with hundreds of long-term residents. They were here during some very interesting and dynamic times. They also took pictures. These photos not only showed them as young and full of ka-ka, but captured our city during an incredibly rich time. So, what am I leading up to?

Wouldn't it be nice if we could "borrow" these treasures for a short time (we'll even give a receipt) and form them into a "Then and Now" perspective? We could use all types of photos...showing people, places and events. As far as the format goes, we could find a person in town who has the connections to get a bound book of sorts to contain the photos and, possibly, we could get some of the old folks to write us an essay or two. I'm thinking of the style of Harry Martin. You know the old saying, "we don't miss it till it's gone." I know there are hundreds of magnificent photos lounging in drawers and dusty photo albums just waiting to be incorporated into this book. It would give us a chance to laugh a bit, high and even cry some.

The end result would be that we'd hit you up twenty or twenty-five bucks for this treasure and donate the whole nine yards to something we'd decide between now and then. Who knows, maybe others would be interested seeing what occurred "then" and what's going on "now" and perhaps they can tell "us" why things are still good in Sierra Madre (I suspect we already know.)

I'll mull this over on vacation and hit you up again on it. Meanwhile, you can let Toni know what you think of this, and she can fill me in on our return

As Mr. McLaughlin on TV says, "Bye-Bye now."

Tailor moves to Sierra Madre

A man who has been in France and Armenia, learning custom tailoring for almost 35 years, has moved his business, Maestro Custom Tailor, to Sierra Madre in the former location of Delahooke and Associates, 81 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.

John Keshishian, his wife, Eliza, and son, Reuben, have moved their business to that location along with key making, shoe repair, and they are a dry cleaning agent, also. Reuben is assisting his father, learning the tailoring business, and assisting with the cleaning and keys. He spent a three-month apprenticeship in San Marino, learning those two sides of the business.

They plan an open house this Saturday, June 5, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Their regular hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays.

John Keshishian speaks six languages, and was born in Greece. He and his family have lived in the United States for five years. The Keshishians have been married for 23 years.

Reuben was born in Armenia 22 years ago, and finished college in Armenia, completing his education at Blair High School, Pasadena, in 1989.

Eliza is a native of France.

John finished design school in France and worked in Odessa, Russia, designing dresses for opera stars. He also worked 13 to 14 years in France for a sports manufacturer where he designed and sewed different styles for men and women.

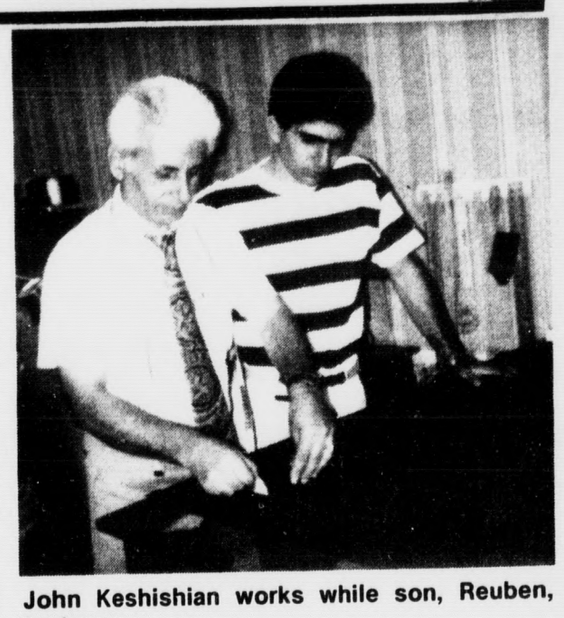
"I can do sports or dress-up clothes. It makes no difference," he said recently. He also has a full-time job in the central tailoring shop of Harris and Frank in North Hollywood. "We also do leather alteration," he added.

Keshishian said, "We believe our customers will be very satisfied with everything we do. We have experience in business and look forward to serving the people of the San Gabriel Valley."

The business, under that roof, includes all kinds of designing and tailoring as well as alteration, a full clothes cleaning agency, a key making business, as well as shoe repair with Arthur Jambasian who was educated in Italy for 38 years. Reuben will apprentice with him, also.

And what will Eliza do? She is known for her cooking, John explains. Her specialties are French, Middle Eastern, European and Greek. She will be responsible for the food at the open house on Saturday, June 5.

Welcome them to Sierra Madre.



John Keshishian works while son, Reuben, looks on.

Protecting your home

Are you planning a vacation? The Safety Center, Inc. suggests a few precautions to protect your home while you're away.

Set timers that automatically turn lights on and off in several rooms at various hours. A timer can also be used for a radio.

- Park your car halfway up the driveway to prevent thieves from parking vans or trucks near the house.
- Be sure to have a neighbor pick up mail and newspapers.

Remember, a house that seems occupied can help keep burglars away.

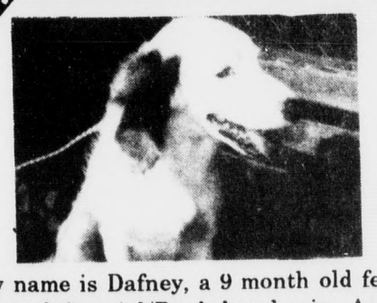
Ask Dr. Tami... This pet's for you...

PET KORNER

Dear Dr. Tami
I just found a kitten. How can I tell how old it is? It doesn't seem to be able to eat on its own. Do I need to feed anything special?

A kitten's eyes open at about ten to fourteen days of age. They gain the ability to urinate and defecate on they own at about three weeks of age. Before that age the mother stimulates them to go by licking. You can mimick this by rubbing the genital area with a cotton ball soaked in warm water. Normally kittens are weaned from their mother between four and six weeks of age and will usually eat canned kitten food at that time. If your kitten is not eating on is own than you may need to bottle feed him. Make sure that you use kitten milk replacer and not cow's milk. Kittens have very special nutrient requirements (eg taurine) and can have developmental defects if they receive improper nutrition.

If you have a question regarding your pet -write "Ask Dr. Tami", P.O. Box 3139, Arcadia, CA 91066-3139.



My name is Dafney, a 9 month old female neutered Spaniel/Dachshund mix. As you can see in the picture, I favor the Spaniel in color (white/brown spots) and have a cute long body like a Dachshund. (The best of both).

I know the combination seems weird, but I think I'm very cute and quite show dogish! I'm also a sweet and gentle dog who likes to play and cuddle. I know I'll make a wonderful companion for you and your family.

Please come in and see me. My kennel ticket # is 70473 – HURRY!!!

Letters from home

This is about an Iowa fellow, Robert Waller, and a bestseller book he wrote about "The Bridges of Madison County."

It's not a travel piece. It isn't history. Mr. Waller is not a photographer, or a poet.

These bridges are about adultery—pure, unadulterated adultery. Romantic stuff.

The subject is made for television drama and talk shows. It got there in a hurry. We didn't have to wait for the bridges to get to the boob tube. Oprah brought TV to the bridges.

So here she was with the whole crew, near Winterset, Iowa, in the heart of the heartland—locus of Mr. Waller's story.

And the subject of the morning's talk show was: "Do you have a lost love?"

The revelations of the hour outdid "The Bridges"—naturally.

We happened to be about 40 miles from Madison County on the day, and so, had the benefit of TV critic Janis Froelick's comment in Saturday's Des Moines Register. Under a paragraph heading, "Almost Embarrassing," she wrote: "Lusty musings and the smell of manure mingled in the air as assorted couples took to Oprah's outdoor microphones. They revealed desires most reserve for the psychiatrist's couch....."

Author Waller loved the show. "It sells books."

But down at Southridge Mall, folks were taking the big Iowa event pretty much in stride.

With a twinkle in his eye, one old codger asked his buddy, "Do you suppose there's as much of that going on as there used to be?"

Cathy Fiore to leave Chamber

Cathy Fiore, one of the two staff members at the Main Street Chamber of Commerce, announced at the board meeting Tuesday morning that she would be resigning in July to home teach her children during the next school year. Board members, led by President Susan Taylor Colby, said they were sorry that she would be leaving the chamber. She has been with the group for almost two years.

Bill Sullivan, Jr., treasurer; Horst Engel, treasurer last year, and Emelita Bituin, manager at Sanwa Bank, recently did an audit of the books. Bituin listed some of the suggestions that arose from that audit: reconciling the statement on a monthly basis; attaching cancelled checks and the register to the statement. The reconciliation, Bituin said, should be presented to the board on a monthly basis.

She also suggested that an inventory account of soda pop, etc., should be set up and surplus inventory kept at a minimum. The auditors recommended that the two staff members should work different shifts to better serve the community. They also suggested that a schedule of staff work should be supervised by one of the Main Street officers.

Besides Colby and Sullivan as president and treasurer, respectively, officers include Don Murphy, past president and secretary; and Karen Corazzelli, vice president and president-elect. Elections take place at the end of the year with installation traditionally in January.

The group also decided to continue the columns in the Sierra Madre News and Ann Luke, president of Luke Communications, will write the column on a monthly basis.

Wistaria logo sought

1994 has been proclaimed "Centennial Year of the Wistaria" by the Sierra Madre City Council. A variety of activities will celebrate the 100th birthday of the world-famous vine.

The Sierra Madre Beautification Committee and Wistaria Fete Committee, coordinators for the community-wide birthday celebrations for the Grand Old Lady, invite local artists to submit designs for a Centennial logo.

The design must adapt to a wide range of applications and media: black and white and color, print media and publications, T-shirts, ceramics, patches. The selected logo will be featured on all official Centennial communication and display and souvenir items. The artist of the winning design will be given credit through publicity and other means.

Entry deadline is Thursday, July 1, 1993, by 5 p.m. and they may be submitted to the Sierra Madre Beautification Committee, Shirley McGillicuddy, Wistaria Vine chair, care of City Hall.

For more information call 355-8715.

Dog missing; $500 reward offered

Remember the sweet-faced Pug you saw on posters around Sierra Madre last week as a "lost dog?" Well, she's still missing, according to her owners, Scott and Barbara Ramp, new residents of Sierra Madre.

Her name is Gertie, and she's a female Pug only 2 years old. She's a small Pug, and may be even smaller because of not being on regular food since she has not been home for 10 days.

As if to find Gertie even more difficult, she got out the front gate with no collar or tags, so she is unidentifiable.

"Gertie is very shy so she might be hiding out. I've checked with area pounds and veterinarians around the area and no one has spotted her yet. We are willing to pay $500 for her return, no questions asked. It is unlikely that a coyote got her because at this time of year there are enough rabbits and other game to satisfy their appetites. We think she's still alive somewhere. She has been spotted around the community, eating catfood. Perhaps someone has taken her in as a pet," Scott said Tuesday.

He took last week off work to find Gertie, but so far, no word.

He added that she has a liver condition which needs medication if she doesn't get the proper diet.

They have driven around Sierra Madre and the extended area and still she is missing.

"She snores loudly and makes a snorting sound. She has a face only a mother (or father) could love," Scott grinned. "It's like finding a needle in a haystack," he said, shaking his head.

This is a special dog. Scott gave her to Barbara as a Christmas present in 1991 "and she's our baby," Scott concluded.

Anyone who has seen her or might be taking care of her for awhile should call 355-6999 as soon as possible.

Scott is a makeup and special effects artist for "The Fright Factory" in Lakewood and Barbara is a data entry person for a medical company. They love Sierra Madre and have great faith that their dog, Gertie, will be found through the ads and this article.

Don't let them down, please. Call 355-6999 and collect your $500. You don't even have to pass "Go" to collect as you would in a Monopoly game...

Adams discusses utility tax with Main Street board

Gary Adams, former mayor of Sierra Madre and present City Councilman, told the Main Street Chamber of Commerce Tuesday some of the reasons a utility tax should probably be passed in Sierra Madre. He added that the tax would go into effect "in October or November of this year," if passed.

"Whatever fee we place will be done on a yearly basis. I believe that we should review the fee each year to make sure that we need to continue with a 6 or less percent. If we don't, I will vote 'no' for the fee," Adams said, stressing how important it is for the council to review the percentage of fee each year.

David Cain, deputy finance director of Sierra Madre, told The News that the council was expecting to exempt those Sierra Madreans who are on the Lifeline discount established by HUD, the national housing authority, and by the utility companies.

Cain said that the percentage of Sierra Madre residents on those savings plans equaled "between 2 and 4 percent of the residents."

The guidelines include the following numbers in a household and the maximum those numbers may make in a year: 1-2 people, $15,300; 3rd person, $17,900; an extra fourth, $21,500; fifth, $25,100; sixth, $28,700; seventh, $32,300; and each additional person, $3600.

At Tuesday morning's meeting, Bill Sullivan, Jr. asked Adams if the City Council has done anything about businesses that use large amounts of utilities and Adams answered that they have not discussed that yet.

Adams explained that Sierra Madreans are now paying $3.19 more on their water bills to pay for the $700,000 settlement Sierra Madre paid as defendants in a lawsuit in a landfill problem years ago. This was to settle the lawsuit on rubbish collection for four years three decades ago, he explained.

Adams also cautioned the board that we will be paying in another lawsuit in which the Sanitation District had just settled with National Oceanography (NOAA) concerning DDT that had gone into the oceans, harming the fish and sea plants. That was a $42 million settlement. He said it is expected that our property tax would be increased by "30 to 40 cents per month."

Composting demo Saturday, June 12

A backyard composting demonstration is scheduled for Saturday, June 12, 10 to 11:30 a.m. in Memorial Park.

The city is sponsoring the demonstration and those attending will have an opportunity to learn how to reduce trash volume and create a valuable organic product; win a free compost brochure; inspect the bin the city is offering for sale at city hall; purchase a compost bin that is available to Sierra Madre residents at a special discount price.

Every year at this time the Children's Department at Sierra Madre Library is busily getting ready for Summer Reading Club. The bulletin boards and display case are being decorated with enticing artwork depicting the Summer Reading Club theme. New children's books are arriving and being rushed onto the shelves in readiness for the summer readers. Teen volunteers are seen working in the library cutting out stencils and preparing Summer Reading Club files. Patrons are eagerly awaiting the first day of registration and asking what the incentives will be for this summer. The Children's Librarian is busily visiting the schools around town promoting Summer Reading Club. She will even be marching in the Fourth of July Parade with her group of volunteers and children handing out flyers.

What is it about Summer Reading Programs that make them so popular year after year? Could it be the excellent children's literature which is available every year, or the incentives given to the young people who choose to join the club and read books.

Speaking to the children that come into the library, we received many different responses to that question. Some children enjoyed reading different authors and different subjects. Others joined because their school assigned summer reading for their next grade level ane requested with proof that they had actually read the books. Thus, they were pleased with the Summer Reading Club Certificate they received. Some children came into the library to watch the Family Entertainment made up of magicians, storytellers, musicians, etc. and discovered the program at that time. A few children confessed that they joined the Club because their parents thought it would give them something to do and keep them out of trouble.

Whatever the reason, the staff of Sierra Madre Library is pleased to see over 400 children come in during the summer and register for Summer Reading Club. It is a wonderful feeling to hand out the incentives, listen to children discuss their favorite books, and watch their faces light up when they receive their very own Summer Reading Club Certificate at the end of August.

So, encourage your children, grandchildren, or young friends to come to the library and join the Summer Reading Club. This years' theme is, "Starring Library Kids."

Registration begins, Monday, June 21, at noon. Summer Reading Club is sponsored by the Friends of the Sierra Madre library. For more information, please call Cathy Ryne at 355-7186.

Public hearing July 6 for assessing utility tax

Sierra Madre City Council at last week's meeting announced a public hearing on Tuesday, July 6, 6:30 p.m., at which time they will discuss and hold a public hearing concerning an ordinance as a vehicle for assessing a utility users' tax in Sierra Madre.

A subsequent ordinance, concerning the amount of the tax, will be adopted after community input, with the probable amount to be 6 percent. If that is the percentage implemented, the city could raise $601,838 per year in a probable three-year period, with this tax.

The council holds the right to keep the tax at 6 percent or lower it within that three-year period.

On June 1, 15 and 29, the council will discuss the city budget and regular meetings this month are set on June 8 and 22 "to give the community as much time as possible to understand the city's budget and need to raise more revenue," agreed staff and the council.

At last week's meeting, the council gave a nod to Harold J. Spears at 825 Auburn Ave., paving the way for a lot split, one parcel of 59,854.3 square feet and the other, 31,552.7 square feet.

A public hearing is set for June 8 to overrule the actions of the May 11 council meeting concerning an appeal filed by J. K. Ingrao at 611 W. Orange Grove. City Attorney Charles Martin indicated that a tied vote by the Planning Commission precludes the City Council from sustaining the action of the commission. Therefore, he urged the council to reconsider its action of May 11 and consider an appeal.

Martin explained that an abstension (of which there was one when the Planning Commission voted on the matter) reflects a vote with the majority. Because there was a tie vote, it is necessary for the council to reconsider, he said.

Ingrao had applied for a variance to install a 5-foot wrought iron fence in the front yard of his home at 661 W. Orange Grove. Ave.

A public hearing is scheduled for the June 8 meeting concerning weed abatement. As of May 25, 1993, only three properties listed had not begun abatement corrections.

Ostermans have daughter

Michael and Som Osterman of Sierra Madre are parents of a daughter, Devyn Elizabeth, born May 12 at Huntington Memorial Hospital. the baby weighed 6 lbs. 11 oz. and is 21 inches long.

Grandparents are Harold and Linda Osterman of Sierra Madre and Barry and Al Edridge of Yorba Linda.

Physical therapy brought to Sierra Madre by Balian

There is a romantic beginning for the marriage of Dr. Raffi and Patty Balian. He, from Bierut, Lebanon, met Patty, a Canadian, in her home country. They were married in Armenia (Russia) and came to live in Southern California. They now have two children: a son, Marc, who was born in 1991, and a daughter, Danielle, who was born three weeks ago.

Balian is the new addition to Sierra Madre Medical Clinic, joining Bill White, M.D., and Norman Johnson, M.D. The clinic has recently been sold to Arroyo Seco Medical Group.

Dr. Ballian's family fled Lebanon 12 years ago and are established here—a brother in Glendale and his mother and a brother in Pasadena. Both men are engineers.

How did he meet his wife? He studied medicine in Armenia, formerly the Soviet Union, for seven years before going to Ottawa, Canada, to train in physical medicine and rehabilitation. During his last year of residency, he received a call from Project Hope, located in Virginia, offering him a job as a medical director in a pediatric rehabilitation program in Yerevan, Armenia. He accepted and spent time in Armenia with a delegation of Canadians, assisting youth who had been injured during the earthquake there.

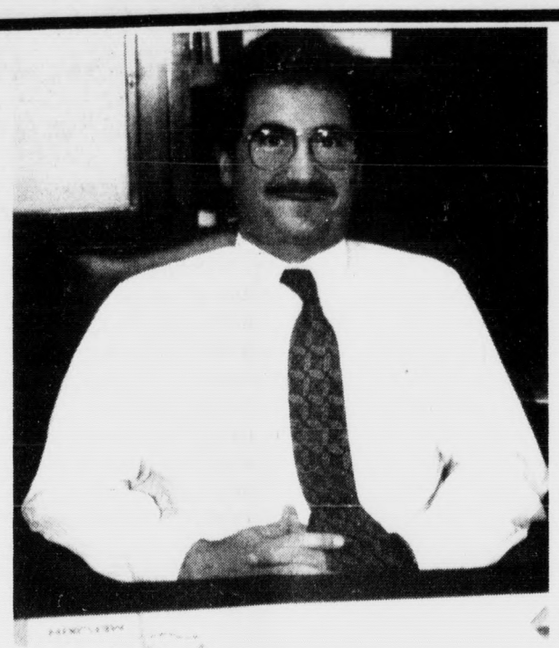
They brought two teenagers, a double amputee girl of 19, and a single amputee boy, 15, to the United States for prostheses and training. When the delegation returned to Armenia to assess others who had been injured, Patty, his wife-to-be, was among those to make the trip, and the Balians decided to be wed in Armenia.

That's how the man from Bierut came to marry the woman from Canada and live in California.

The big news at this point is that Balian plans to open a physical therapy department in Sierra Madre across the hall from the Sierra Madre Medical Clinic. He will treat joint, muscle and nerve injuries, musculo-skeletal conditions, he explained.

"We hope to attract the whole San Gabriel Valley as soon as we hire our staff of a physical and an occupational therapist, purchase the equipment and get our very fine staff up-to-speed in that area," Balian said last week.

Dr. Balian worked in two other offices before coming here and said of the Sierra Madre office, "I like this nice working atmosphere. It's not overcrowded here and there is constant energy among the doctors and fine staff."



Dr. Raffi Balian

Balian, who speaks seven languages and is now learning Spanish, has an international curriculum vitae which includes study of medicine in Lebanon, Armenia, Canada and the United States. He is awaiting privileges at Methodist Hospital in Arcadia, Huntington Hospital and St. Luke's Hospital. He also works in La Canada and Pasadena, and the Balians live in Altadena.

"This climate (in Southern California) is very similar to the area where I was born—sunshine, pleasant winters. It is one of the factors that intrigued me. That and the people,' Balian smiled, in conclusion.

Lerners bring Country Western Dancing to village

A new rage is about to hit Sierra Madre. Donna Sue and Tony Lerner are bringing Country Western Dance to the village with classes and open dancing, beginning on June 10.

Please note their advertisement on this page.

This rage, according to them, bit them a couple of years ago when they first discovered it.

"You work all day and everyone seems to be at each other's throats. It's nice to be with others who enjoy each other—that's what we're meant to do. That's Country Western Dance," Tony said.

Donna Sue added, "I don't think we'd have the time for cameraderie and closeness without this new fun. We listen to a couple of FM stations, KZLA at 93.9 and KHIT at 97.5, to hear about new places where we can meet friends and dance."

Those statements are the incentives to explore the dance that has been around awhile. To make sure that others have as much fun, the Lerners, particularly Donna Sue whose business, Donna Sue's Country Tees is sponsoring the classes, have developed a six-hour course in dance steps which Tony will teach, with Donna's help, beginning on June 10.

Classes will run for four Thursdays from 6:30 to 8 p.m. and registration is required by calling 355-9861. Cost is $32 for this six-hour course which will take place at the Masonic Temple at 33 E. Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre.

There will also be line dance classes every Thursday, starting on June 10, which will last from 8 to 9 p.m. and the cost for these is $5 per class. There is no registration required for these line dance classes which feature, among some of the dances, Slapping Leather, Black Velvet, Copperhead Road, Tush Push and Cowboy Hustle.

The six-hour beginning course will also feature Western Waltz and 10-step.

The Texas 2-step course and the line dance classes are open to both couples and singles.

"It's fun, it's good exercise, you meet wonderful people, and we have a group that meets two to three times a week and we dance 'till we drop," Tony said. "It's something you can do as a single or couples and there are fast and slow dances."

"We love to dance, different types of dance. Why do we like Western? Because everyone has so much fun. There are fun people of all ages and it's something we can enjoy together all of our lives on a weekly basis," Donna Sue added.

Do you need to wear special clothing? "Only if you want to wear Country Western 'git-up' with boots and cowboy hats," Donna Sue grinned. "It's not required, but dressing the part adds to the fun."

"The only thing you have to remember is to wear leather-soled shoes. Rubber-soled shoes won't work with this type of dancing," Tony said.

Join them...and have the times of your lives.

Methodist

Our church is offering a Prayer Line for those who wish to hear a recorded prayer for personal and spiritual growth. The telephone number for this ministry is 355-8644. If you wait until the "beep" before hanging up the phone, it will help us determine how many people are using the Prayer Line. The prayer message is changed no less frequently than once a week.

Bishop Roy I. Sano will convene the 1993 sessions of the California-Pacific Annual Conference on Wednesday, June 16 at the University of Redlands. Pastor Rich will be attending the Conference along with Lay Members Virginia Wood and Luce Heller. This year's Conference theme is "Celebrate and Witness."

Dawn Suzuki, a youth member of our church and a freshman at Pasadena High School, was recently selected to serve on a student task force to "Solve Tomorrow's Problems." Along with students from across the country, Dawn will travel to Wisconsin for a major consultation on such problems as nuclear waster disposal, overwaste disposal, overpopulation and destruction of the environment.

This Sunday we will celebrate Holy Communion and look at the Great Commission of Jesus: "Go and make disciples of all nations." What will it mean to witness for Christ in the 21st century?

Worship with us and find a friend!

Congregational

At Sierra Madre Congregational Church service times are 7:30, 8:45, 10:05, 11:25 on June 6.

This Sunday Pastor Anderson will be speaking from Luke 14:25-35 on "Counting the Cost of Discipleship." Because Jesus is God, He must be more important to us than anyone or anything else in life. Often people admire Jesus as the Son of God but they stop with admiration and do not follow Him. Jesus is not looking for our admiration, He wants our total submission.

Why do we Christians do so many "religious things" and yet fail to do the one thing Jesus is asking of us? What do I value more than anything else? Jesus wants that place of highest value. When He truly has it, we have taken the first step in becoming His disciples.

Jesus is seeking for followers who will forsake everyone and everything to follow Him. To many, this "forsaking" seems like hatred, and in a very real sense it is. But it frees one from the love of this world and "hatred" of the Lord, and so it is very good!

Only when Jesus becomes more important than anyone or anything else in life will you and I be able to follow Him.

On Sunday evening we will have a special time of prayer and commissioning for Andy and Martha Diesslin and family. They will be moving to Brooklyn, N.Y. to start their church planting ministry among Arab immigrants. Please join us as we lift this family in prayer and send them off on the "Great Commission."

St. Rita's

Trinity Sunday will be celebrated this Sunday, June 6. The concept of a Triune God remains an inscrutable mystery for us, one that can only be accepted on faith.

"But what does the notion of a Triune God have to do with people's everyday lives?

"First of all, as this week's Gospel makes clear, we Christians don't worship some merely abstract Deity. The doctrine of the Trinity teaches us to see God in concrete relational terms: as Father, Son and Spirit.

"Secondly, the Trinity teaches us that our whole life, as Christians, is not some vague spiritual search, but a precise threefold journey: toward the Father, through the Son, in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Finally, and perhaps most importantly, the Trinity reveals to us, as French author Leon Bloy was fond of saying, "the awesome humility of God."

Child Care Center sets graduation

Faith Lutheran Child Care Center will graduate twenty-one children in special ceremonies this Friday at 7:30 p.m., at Faith Lutheran Church, 835 Hastings Ranch Dr. (at Sierra Madre Blvd.) The evening program will begin with a Spring Concert involving all 63 children of the Center. They will present a number of heart-warming, humorous, and inspirational songs. Following the children's presentation a series of slides will be shown, depicting the children and their activities. The evening will end with a time of fellowship and refreshments in an "open house" setting. All families of the community are invited to participate. This marks the eleventh such "graduation" for the Center.

Sharyn Jones, director of the Child Care Center, announced that registrations for the 1993-1994 year are progressing ahead of previous years and she expects there will soon be a waiting list in all classes. Those who would like to inquire about the Center can call Sharyn Jones at 351-0610.

Special Worship Set

This coming Sunday will be celebrated as the Feast of the Holy Trinity at Faith Lutheran at the regular 10:30 a.m. service. Pastor Rich Schinnerer announced plans to incorporate the ancient Athanasian Creed in the service because it so beautifully outlines the Christian belief in the Biblical teaching of a unique Godhead, comprised of three separate, but equal, Persons but united into one God.

On Stage

By Mary Cogswell Baum

The Colony Theater in Los Angeles, just 20 minutes or less from Sierra Madre, is a small wonder. It is the only little theater I know of that is suffering from too many supporters. Its season is 90 percent taken up by subscribers, leaving few tickets for the general public. Occasionally its productions are sold out before they open, which is true of their current show, a musical called "Rags," with a book by Joseph Stein, who also adapted Sholom Alechum's stories into "Fiddler on the Roof," and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz, who did "Godspell" and "Pippen."

In a way, "Rags" begins where "Fiddler" left off. When the people of Anatevka were exiled from their village, some of them undoubtedly ended up in New York on Delancey Street. The year is 1910, still a record year for immigration, when over 1 million newcomers poured through Ellis Island, and it tells of Rebecca Hershkowitz, a young woman who arrives, with her son, David, to join her husband. But letters have gone astray, and he is not there to meet her. Adopted into a close knit Jewish community, she soon makes friendships among the immigrants who manage to stay alive—and energetic and hopeful—in the city's most menial jobs, and when Nathan, her husband, eventually finds her, she must make a dicision between becoming an exploiter or remaining an exploitee.

It is an interesting time and place and many multi-talented people grew out of it—not only in business and the arts but in politics and social service.

Composer Charles Strouse ("Annie," "Bye, Bye, Birdie") says he was fascinated by the music of the period. So many cultures were jammed together in the slums of New York that however different they were, their music rubbed off on each other. African might predominate but Irish, Russian and Arab contributed harmonies to what became jazz and ragtime. Strauss tried to get that spirit into his score and at least partially succeeded.

But "Rags" did not do well on Broadway in 1986. Delancy Street, while as foreign in some ways as Anatevka, does not have the exotic appeal. But the story is a good one, the motivations no more abrupt than most musicals, and, while Stein is no Aleichum, there are very memorable scenes; among them: the gentle but spirited Rebecca, holding her own at a Tammany ball by introducing dances from her own heritage; one aging peddler (Rachel Halphern) tempting another (Don Woodruff) into sharing her "Three Sunny Rooms"; the crowd cheerfully celebrating the wonders of American in "The Fourth of July" immediately after being raided for not paying protection money.

Anna Heller as a frustrated young girl sings the title song as she protests her world full of second hand "Rags."

In keeping with the spirit of the production, the ethnic derivations of the cast are listed along with their performance credits. The recent or ancestral backgrounds of these American actors includes Austria, China, Denmark, England, France, Finland, Germany, India, Ireland, Italy, Native America, Poland, Portugal, Puerto Rico, Scotland, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Russia. In seven cases, grandparents or great-grandparents came through Ellis Island and two trace their line back to the Mayflower.

Americans may be unique in the world in being proud to be a mixture. May the richness of our heritage continue to delight us.

The Colony Theater is planning a few extra performances of "Rags" for which tickets may be available. Call (213) 665-3011 for information. The Colony is at 1944 Riverside Dr. in L.A. Take the 210 to the 134 to the Glendale Freeway to the Golden State. Get off at once at Riverside Drive exit and turn left to the Colony.

Margaret MacAulay observes 90th

Margaret MacAulay celebrated her 90th birthday Friday, May 28, with her daughter, Cathy, and family, the Michael Heflins in Sierra Madre.

Mrs. MacAulay is remembered for starting the gift shop at Arnold's Hardware when it was first located on Baldwin Ave., before it moved to Sierra Madre Blvd.

The 90-year-old retired in 1966 after having spent 20 years building up the gift shop there to what it is now, a full gift shop attached to the hardware store.

Mrs. MacAulay was born in Spokane, Wash., and grew up there, moving to San Francisco after her marriage. Mr. MacAulay died a few years after their move to Sierra Madre 42 years ago. He was with Travelers Insurance before his death.

Mrs. MacAulay's parents were not long-lived, and when asked to what she attributes her long life, she answered simply, "I don't know. I do know that I have no aches and pains."

Her mother's death came when she was in her mid-50s and her father died 10 years later.

Mrs. MacAulay found herself with little to do after her husband's death, and when the late Mr. Arnold, founder of the present hardware store, asked her to "come work for me," she relented.

"I didn't know much about the gift business but I learned," she reported Friday.

Cathy Heflin is her only child and her grandchildren include Michael Jr. who works with his father as a stockbroker/trader in Sierra Madre. He graduated from Northwestern University, and he and his wife, Catherine, are expecting their first child. They live in Sierra Madre.

Maggie Heflin is a graduate of Princeton and works for an Austrian bank. Charles graduated from Bucknell and works as a stockbroker/trader in New York for this father. Elizabeth attends Columbia University.

Congratulations to Mrs. MacAulay for her long, productive life.

Summer fun at Creative Arts Group

By Kathy Foresta

From Aadvarks to Zebras, from Planets to Stars, there is plenty of fun to be found at Creative Arts Group this summer. Located at 108 N. Baldwin in Sierra Madre, CAG has planned a summer of fun beginning the week of June 21.

For the very young, CAG is offering Preschool Potpourri (aadvarks to zebras.) A different animal will be studied each week. Make a watercolor walrus, a tie-dyed butterfly or a plaster penguin while listening to animal sounds and munching untamed animal crackers.

For those a little older learn about planets and stars in the Multimedia class. Create a papier mache' globe or a collage mobile of the celestial beings. In addition, there are classes for children in Cartooning, Drawing and Painting, Ceramics, for all ages, and Conceptual Art for children ages 11 to 15.

Also included in session A will be several one- and two-day workshops which will include Summer Fun Hats, Batik Banners, and Sand Castles just to name a few.

Adult classes for Session A will include several new classes. In "Working From The Model," students will have the opportunity to work in the media of their choice. Participants will sign up for a month of workshops at a time. A model will be available for three hours each class meeting.

Also new this session is colored pencil drawing. Adults can choose from on-going classes in watercolor, ceramics, oil painting, tole painting, enameling and many other classes in fiber arts or calligraphy.

Creative Arts group is a nonprofit art center that offers low cost classes for children through adults. Persons wishing a brochure or more information about the summer program may stop by the office located at 108 N. Baldwin, in Sierra Madre or call 355-8350.

Office hours are 9 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturday 10 until 2 p.m. Creative Arts Group summer sessions begin June 21 and August 2. Each session runs six weeks.

Take Care

When was the last time a cleaning process damaged a favorite shirt, suit or dress? Although the care label instructions were followed, the garment did not respond well to the manufacturer's recommended cleaning method. Luckily, there are steps that can be taken to avoid disasters during the cleaning process.

What Are Care Labels?

Care labels, the permanent label or tag that contains regular care information and instructions attached inside a garment, give the proper cleaning method for the garment. A garment cleaned by the method prescribed on a care label is expected to undergo the process with no problems.

Besides giving full instructions for at least one satisfactory method of care, a care label should warn about any part of the procedure that could harm the garment or others being laundered or cleaned at the same time.

Follow Care Label Instructions

To insure the best cleaning performance, always read and follow the care instructions. Use of a care method not specified on a care label may be risky. For further information about care labels, please contact your local IFI member professional drycleaner.

Firefighters help in more ways than one

To help pay for renew carpeting and clean- following a fire at the Arcadia Woman's Club, the Arcadia Firefighters Association presented a check for $250 to the local social/service club.

"We think it's fabulous. What a wonderful surprise!" exclaimed club president Marge Elliott about the donation. She was summoned by the police department at 3 a.m. on the morning of Good Friday, only to find out that there was a fire in the clubhouse.

Firefighters became aware of the fire after someone walking his dog smelled smoke and called the fire department. By the time the firemen arrived there were flames in the front lounge area, reported Engineer Dave Hutcheson, who explained that it took about 10 minutes to put out the fire, which was caused when a flexline in the floor heater broke and fed gas to the pilot. While the fire was contained in the heater area of the lounge, smoke spread throughout the clubhouse.

Even though the Woman's Club had recently made extensive repairs and refurbishing because of earthquake damage and retrofitting, it was forced to paint, buy new carpet, clean all furniture, fixtures and drapes as well as repair the floor, broken window and furnace following the fire. Vi Cook was in charge of all of the repair and cleaning work.

The donation to help with these expenses came from the firefighters to show appreciation to the Woman's Club, which each year holds an appreciation luncheon for Arcadia policemen and firemen, explained Capt. Ken Marston.

Board recap

Auditorium funds granted; overview of ROP presented

Trustees of the Arcadia Auditorium Foundation formally granted to the Arcadia Unified School District the balance of $198,622.91 in the auditorium account at last week's meeting of the Arcadia Board of Education.

The foundation was formed in 1977 with trustees Charles Gilb, Joe Sargis and Gloria Horstman to manage funds for a civic auditorium. Several fund-raing events, including a jog-a-walk-a-thon, were held, netting $66,040.48. Subsequently, the foundation has allocated partial interest income to make grants totalling $62,500 to the school district for district-wide music and auditorium related activities.

Conditions of the recent grant stipulate that the district hold $100,000 in trust with the excess and earnings thereon being utilized for music and auitorium-related activities. Should an auditorium ever become a reality, the $100,000 held in trust may be applied to actual construction costs.

In other business, Suyen and Denis Vilchez, owners of King Arthur's Pizza, presented the district with their donation of 4500 magnets imprinted with the district's secondary school hotline numbers, and board president James Bryant presented Pann Baltz, 1993 California teacher of the Year, with a framed letter from Governor Pete Wilson, recognizing her for raising awareness and support for "our most precious resource, our children,"

Superintendent Terry Towner presented certificates of appreciation to community leaders in recognition of their support of Arcadia schools. Those recognized were G. Michael Alison, chairman of the executive planning committee of the Arcadia Festival of Bands; Howard Larew, 1992-93 president of the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce; and George Fasching, 1992-93 mayor of Arcadia.

Dena Davis, Regional Occupational Program counselor, presented an overview of the ROP annual report, which reflected a total of 617 Arcadia students enrolled in courses during the 1992-93 school year. The AUSD hosted 23 programs during this period.

In other action, the board authorized the administration to establish a pilot program for extended-day child care for school-age children at Camino Grove Elementary School.

The next regular meeting of the Arcadia Board of Education will be on Tuesday, June 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Downtown changes suggested

Take parking off of Huntington Dr., build out sidewalks, install decorative signals, lighting and kiosks, add extra crosswalks and redesign the railroad bridge at Second Ave.

These were some of the suggestions to revitalize downtown Arcadia made by urban planner Michael Freedman at the fourth community workshop on the future of the two-block area on Huntington Dr. between Santa Anita and Second Ave.

Another suggestion to make the area more conducive to strolling, a place to "hang out," was to install three-and-a-half foot decorative fences at the curb. These silver/while fences would take their design from Santa Anita Park.

Freedman suggested that much of the planting and design work would reflect the strong architectural images at the local race track. That would include palm trees in the median and tall palm trees planted curbside along the sidewalk. Design work on the railroad overcross would also reflect the race horse theme.

Throughout three previous workshops, residents and business owners have heard ideas on what has worked and not worked in downtown revitalization projects, and they have shared their own ideas with Freedman, who is associated with Freedman, Tung and Bottomley, the firm that the city of Arcadia hired to give direction in the downtown project.

After hearing Freedman's recommendations for the Arcadia project, speakers at last week's meeting showed support for the new plan, several people making only minor cosmetic adjustments to the proposal.

Freedman's recommendations also included a new signage program, diagonal parking along First Avenue on both sides of Huntington and the addition of signalized crosswalks every 250 feet in the two-block area on Huntington. The latter suggestion would make it easier for people using the parking area behind the stores on the north side to get to the stores on the south side of the street.

Pete Kinnehan, who is in charge of the Arcadia Redevelopment Agency and economic development for the city, said that he was pleased with public response to the proposals, which will go to the Planning Commission for approval before going to the City Council. He also said that there may be another public workshop but that he hoped the initial project would be finalized by midsummer.

Methodist Hospital of Southern California has been recognized for its commitment to tissue donation and transplantation by the American Red Cross Tissue Services, Western Region, according to an announcement made by James Parker of the Arcadia Red Cross.

Recognition has also been given to hospital personnel who are involved in the support of the families of potential donors, thus helping to ensure that patients needing transplantation can have the surgery required to improve their quality of life, pointed out Parker.

"The commitment that hospital personnel have made in helping families in their difficult time, and providing the option of donation with sensitivity, has made this hospital a leader in our community," said Cheryl McMahon, tissue services regional director.

The local Red Cross Tissue Services was established in 1985, and is the center designated to process cardiovascular tissues collected by Red Cross Tissue Services centers nationwide. Tissue collected for transplantation includes bone, skin, vascular tissues, heart valves, connective tissues, tendons and ligaments.

Multi-family units to recycle

The city of Arcadia, in cooperation with Newco Waste Systems, Inc., had implemented a pilot multi-family recycling program, which began on June 1. This pilot program will be conducted in seven condominium and apartment complexes throughout the city to test the feasibility of the recycling program prior to city staff recommending a city-wide program.

A curbside recyling program for single-family residents, which was implemented in March 1989, now has a 47 percent participation rate. Currently, the single-family recycling program offers residents an opportunity to recycle aluminum, glass, newspapers, plastic and tin.

The multi-family program will include the same type of materials.

In 1989 the California Integrated Waste Management Act was passed, mandating that waste being hauled from the city be reduced by 25 percent by 1995 and 50 percent by the year 2000. Developing successful diversion programs is critical in meeting the city's diversion goals, according to Tammy Gates of the Arcadia city manager's office.

City prepares for 'quake

A scenario that included a large crack in the Baldwin Reservoir and subsequent flooding, a railroad tanker derailed and fallen onto the freeway below, fire in the barns at Santa Anita Park and building collapse throughout the city found approximately 100 Arcadia city personnel and community representatives taking part in an emergency preparedness drill last week Thursday.

The mock incidents followed what Don Alcorn, Emergency Services Coordinator for the city of Arcadia, described as a series of earthquakes beginning at 5:30 a.m. with a 6.6 magnitude pre-shock, an 8.2 'quake and a 7.4 aftershock.

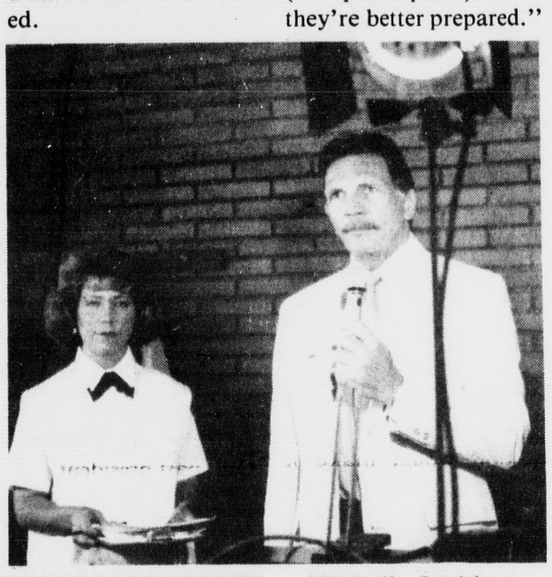
The exercise, which is held on an annual basis, was designed to give staff members as well as key representatives from the city an opportunity to test their ability to handle an earthquake emergency.

The Emergency Operations Center, which operates out of Arcadia Fire Department headquarters on South Santa Anita Ave., was manned by representatives of the fire and police departments, public works, Red Cross, schools, Chamber of Commerce, City Hall, Santa Anita Park, Santa Anita Fashion Park and Arcadia Methodist Hospital.

They received telephone calls reporting incidents throughout the city, and it was their responsibility to coordinate assistance as needed.

Several times during the two-hour exercise, Michelle Rodriquez, the Public Information Officer, would give a television broadcast to update citizens on the condition of the city. Major Joe Ciraulo also contributed to these broadcasts.

At the conclusion of the exercise, outside evaluators gave praise to the participants. Alcorn pointed out that "they (the participants) know they're better prepared."



BROADCAST UPDATE — Michelle Rodriguez, public information officer, stands by as Mayor Joe Ciraulo broadcasts an update on community conditions following a mock earthquake during an emergency preparedness exercise.

COMMENT

by Jack Lamb

THE RED CROSS

There's and old saying that it never rains but it pours. When troubles come, they come in bunches. Perhaps no group of people know the truth of that better than those who serve under the symbol which has become known in the farthest corners of the earth, wherever disaster strikes - the Red Cross.

Nature is unpredictable, except that you can predict that she will cause loss and suffering somewhere throughout each year, from drought or flood, rain or snow, hurricane or tornado or earthquake.

And whether disaster strikes somewhere in South America or the Philippines, in Africa or in the central plains of the United States, among the first to be there with help will be the Red Cross. It puts into action the precept of loving your neighbor. That's why the Red Cross deserves our gratitude . . . and our support.
